

The Red Cross Annual Roll Call, now in progress, has a special significance this year. In addition to providing funds with which to implement the work the society is doing in war stricken Europe, its purpose is to sustain, through membership fees, the regular Red Cross programs at home and to keep the organization prepared to meet any emergency which may confront us.

Donations made to the Red Cross war relief fund during the past summer are being used exclusively to succor distressed foreign populations. Likewise, the food-stuffs and other supplies made available to the Red Cross by means of Congressional appropriation are earmarked for European relief.

Now it is necessary to insure the normal functioning of the vast Red Cross machine in America by supporting the Annual Roll Call membership drive. The multiple and invaluable services the Red Cross performs in our own country must not be forgotten.

Experts estimate that it took 50,000 years of natural selection to produce the present day brought-resistant buffalo grass of the southwestern United States.

United for 70 Years

MR. and MRS. WILLIAM M. HALL... they better serve him pie instead of cake. Next Sunday the Wilmington Christian church will be the scene of a celebration rarely seen these days—friends there will pay honor to Mr. and Mrs. William M. Hall of Harbor City who will be celebrating their 70th wedding anniversary!

After the gala dinner program, the Halls will be guests of more honor at an "open house" in their attractive home at 1537 1/2 261st street, beginning at about 8 o'clock in the afternoon.

Hall celebrated his 66th birthday last March. His wife is now 88 years of age—and she is still boss! Hall is looking forward to his 100th birthday—he has a brother in Washington who is nearly that age and a sister who lived to be 99. Born near Columbus City, Iowa, he married Aurelia Knight of that city in 1870. He was refused for service in the Union Army some 75 years ago because he was too frail looking. For years he followed the profession of interior decorating in Iowa and in Lincoln, Nebraska. Seven years ago the Halls came to Harbor City. The Halls have a son, O. K. Hall of 1537 261st street. Last March at Hall's birthday party he was served his favorite pumpkin pie instead of cake when he declared he never was "a cake-eater and didn't intend to become one now!"

Evangelists to Conduct Services in Local Church Starting Sunday

The pastors of the Torrance Foursquare church, Mr. and Mrs. Ben D. Griffith, announced today that Rev. E. H. and Thelma Willingham, fiery Southern evangelists, will be heard at the local church for two weeks beginning Sunday morning, Nov. 17, at 11 o'clock. The evangelists recently completed a campaign in San Diego. They are said to be "inter-denominational in spirit and preach the gospel without fear or favor." The public is cordially invited to attend the services and enjoy the old-fashioned gospel singing and preaching.

Appellate Court Rules on Responsibility of Indigent's Relatives

Responsible relatives who are financially able to support their kin must be held into court and the extent of their ability to pay must be established in court before they can be sued for reimbursement by the county charities department, the Appellate court ruled this week. "This means that the county should give no more than emergency aid where the applicant for relief has responsible relatives whom the county believes has financial ability to reimburse the county, until the court has determined the extent of the relative's liability," Deputy County Counsel Gerald Kelly advised charities officials.

The court also ruled in this connection that where the county is suing to recover aid for three years back that it could not recover, because of the defendant's ability to pay had not been established prior to the suit. Justice of the Peace Stanley Moffatt of Huntington Park had refused to give the county a judgment on the ground that the section of the welfare and institutions code was unconstitutional.

The higher court upheld the constitutionality of the code section, but ruled that the county had to have the defendant's ability to pay established at the time that aid was extended. Parents, husbands, wives and adult children are considered responsible relatives, according to Kelly.

Grid Player Not To Change His Name LANSING, Mich. (U.P.)—Radio announcers are having trouble with two of the names on the roster of Michigan State College's football squad. They are Dionysius Economopolous and Tom Johnakopolous. The latter shortened his name to "Johnson," but Dionysius retains the entire name, with the explanation his parents wouldn't like it shortened. His teammates call him "Zoon."
